The Twin Cities Visited By a Severe Hailstorm.

Hailstones as Big as Marbles

Came Down Fast and Furious, and Caused Quite a Few Runaways and Ridiculous Nights.

Yesterday the citizens of the Twin Cities experienced the most severe hailstorm that has visited this part of the country for many years. It came up suddenly about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, accompanied by thunder and lightning, and lasted, in all its fury, fully ten minutes. The hailstones were as large as marbles and they came so fast and furious that the ground was soon made white and remained so for some time after the storm had ceased. The temperature dropped 28 degrees in twenty minutes. The storm played havoc with trees, especially fruit trees, and caused quite a few runaways.

One could be kept busy taking in the ridiculous sights that occurred. One of our bald headed citizens had the courage to brave the storm and ran out in front of his place of business to tie up his horse. The bald spot was unprotected, and it was indeed funny to see the hailstones bounce as they struck that tender spot, but they came with such force that he had to give it up. There were other instances equally as funny.

The decorations being put up at Houghton are going to be very attractive. Arches will be erected at each corner from the Portage Lake bridge to the national bank corner. The main arch at the national bank corner is completed and is covered with evergreens, and each arch will be wired for numerous colored electric lights. Besides these decorations an innumerable number of banners will be strung across the streets, and from the different business houses, advertising their special lines. The display will be impossible to surpass.

The Quincy band will give a moonlight picnic Saturday evening, July 30, on Portage Lake. Hennes' barge, Pilgrim, has been engaged and will leave Hancock at 7:30 and Houghton at 8 o'clock. The members of the band are making every effort to give the people a good time. Refreshments will be served and the music for dancing will be furnished by the band.

Scott's park, on Montezuma boulevard, is being greatly improved. A fence was built around it sometime ago, but it was only a temporary structure. They are now fixing fancy tops on all the posts and will, in all probability give it a coat of paint. The grass has grown very rapidly and makes a very pretty appearance.

The steamer Peerless, of Duluth, passed through the Portage Lake yesterday going down. She carried about twenty passengers, six of whom got on at this port. They were the Misses Daw, Grier, and Sinecock, all of Calumet, on their way to Chicago.

Get Your Kodaks Out.

Those wishing plates and films developed and a general finishing of kodak work can have it done in a first-class manner by C. J. Neick. Orders left at Nichols' drug store will receive prompt attention.

The Hancock hose team will try the new track, built at Houghton for the tournament, tonight and for the next few days, until the time of the tournament. They will be accustomed to the track by that time.

Holland & Flynn's dancing school, which is given every Monday evening, will be continued every evening next week. The boys have made their school a popular one, and one cannot help but enjoy himself.

Mr. Tom Hilton, the main stay of the democratic party in this part of the state, is in the copper country in the interest of his house, Forman, Bassett & Hatch.

Misses Olivet Heanes and Josie Lean returned from Duluth yesterday on the steamer Peerless. They have been visiting a short time in that city.

Edward Roosevelt, son of John Roosevelt, of the Quincy, died yesterday morning, age 1 year and 6 months. Funeral took place this afternoon.

Ed Ziegler and son, of Calumet, were at Houghton yesterday. They were registered at the Douglass House.

Miss Mame Harry went to Chassell on the noon train yesterday to visit Miss Ethel Robinson for a few days.

Mrs. A. L. Noble returned to Chassell yesterday after a few days visit at the home of Mrs. A. W. Lord.

THE BACHELORS' DEN.

Elberton Young Men Who Have Resolved to Live All to Themselves.

A bachelors' den has been established in Elberton, Ga. Just in the rear of the handsome new Baptist church is situated a small and unimposing little cottage, but a cottage now famous as being the domicile of the bachelors' den.

Some weeks ago Messrs. J. J. Warren, Jake Silverman, Ed Ramsey, Ed Edwards, Richard Fortson, Seymour Smith, Lon and Gip Glenn decided that they were tired of the boarding house etiquette and its followings and determined to live all to themselves, do their own cooking and housework and ask no woman any odds. So they have organized, and Mr. J. J. Warren, one of Elberton's handsome and most flourishing young merchants, was elected president of the den, with the duties of buying the provisions, having them cooked and to see that each member cleans up his own room, and rented this little cottage in the rear of the church.

Mr. Warren, the president of the den, when seen recently by a representative of the Atlanta Constitution, said that he had no hesitancy in stating that the den was doing finely, and that the inmates were well pleased. He said that now board costs them a little less than an average of $6 per month, whereas boarding they paid about $15, and everything cheap in the way of provisions. "We decided," said he, "that if the boarding house keepers could make so much we might save it, and so organized the den, and so far we are well pleased. You may state to the public, however, and to the ladies incidentally, that we are not in the den to get away from their charms, for we all love the girls and would be glad to have them take care of us. You may say also that we are all very handsome and think we could and would make good husbands. Tell all the ladies who want a husband to apply at once to me, as chairman of the den, and I can furnish them at half price."

Mr. Warren stated further that the boys did all their work and kept one or two servants, and that the house was kept as well as any woman could keep it. These young men are worthy and high toned, and their new venture is watched with interest by the public. Many interesting stories are afloat about them, but they appear to be unruffled and greatly pleased with the life in the den.

PANIC IN WHEAT PIT.

Joseph Leiter Lets Go of 5,000,000 Bushels of the Grain.

Chicago, June 14.—After a brilliant campaign stretching over months King Wheat has suddenly met with a reverse and the market is all in confusion. There was a veritable panic among the bulls, who have been so strongly intrenched that few believed that their position could be successfully attacked. This panic struck the pit on the board almost before the bell had stopped resounding through the big chamber and with a whirl and rush the price began to drop.

In brief, the July option sold off 11 cents from Saturday's close, September slumped 4 1/2 and December 2 1/2 cents. When the market opened in the morning July opened all the way from 85 cents down to 80 cents and before long it was down to 75 cents. Of course the name of Joe Leiter could be heard on all sides as being one of the prime factors in the trouble of the day. L. Z. Leiter, his father, was in the city and all sorts of stories were afloat. The one which gained the most credence was that Leiter the younger had, on the advice of his parent, parted with some 5,000,000 bushels of the product.

Of course, when this got noticed about the little fellows tumbled over each other in their mad rush to get rid of the slippery stuff. Leiter had, it was said, determined to get rid of some of his partners in the deal and had left them high and dry while he went swimmingly on down the stream to success. One of the immediate effects of the panic was a persistent story to the effect that Allen, Grier and Zellner, who have been acting as brokers for Mr. Leiter, were affected by the big slump.

Joseph Leiter is embarrassed but temporarily, according to his own statement. His holdings, exaggerated rumors quickly spread about the streets and the report was soon spread broadcast that the great wheat speculator had assigned and that his father had withdrawn financial support.

"I have not made an assignment," said Mr. Leiter, "nor do I believe such will be necessary. I am embarrassed, however, but only temporarily."

One Can Always Give Himself.

One of the pleasantest of day dreams is to imagine how charitable you would be if you had plenty of money. The role of a bountiful master or mistress is a delightful one, and it is easy to imagine how, if you had a command of a fortune, you would make people happy and with what grace you would receive their gratitude. Of course few persons can venture to indulge the hope that they will be rich, but while we are dreaming these dreams it is well enough to think whether we are showing ourselves charitable in the use of what is really within our command. Take, for instance, one's thoughts. It is natural enough to put a hard and bitter construction upon the actions of others. Possibly, from a superficial point of view, their conduct warrants it. But a thoroughly charitable person—one who would use money beneficently if he had it—will certainly make allowances for others and only reluctantly come to the severe judgment. It is a mistake also to suppose that money can do everything. There are a good many persons who would not if you were as rich as a Barnato take a penny from you. They do not want your money, even though they are not rich themselves, but they would prize consideration, sympathy and fellowship. If we withhold these things that are surely within our power, probably we should not be so very generous if we had plenty of money.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON V, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 31.

Text of the Lesson, I Kings xxi, 4-10.

Memory Verses, 4-6—Golden Text, Ex. xxi, 17—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stern.

4. "And Ahab came into his house heavy and displeased because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken unto him, for he had said, I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers." Therefore like a sulky child he went to bed, turned his face to the wall and would not eat. It was a law in Israel that the prince should not take of the people's inheritance by oppression (Ezek. xlii, 18), but Ahab seemed to know no law but his own will. He offered to buy the field from Naboth, but the inheritance of his fathers was more to Naboth than money. The Holy Spirit, by whom we are sealed, is the earnest of our inheritance (Eph. i, 13, 14). Are we desirous that He shall not be grieved by any misconduct of ours?

5, 6. "But Jezebel, his wife, came to him and said unto him, Why is thy spirit so sad that thou eatest no bread?" And he told her the cause. Contrast the sadness of heart of Neh. ii, 2, and of Dan. x, 2, 3, with this selfishness of Ahab. He should have been, like Nehemiah and Daniel, full of desire for the welfare of the kingdom and for the glory of God, but no such thoughts filled his mind. On the contrary, he was full of desire to add a little bit of property to that which he already possessed. And not yet learned that a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth (Luke xii, 15).

7. "And Jezebel, his wife, said unto him, Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? Arise and eat bread and let thine heart be merry. I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezreelite." The devil quickly suggests to his well trained servant his favorite method of removing those who are in his way, and she as quickly sees the whole thing as good as done and tells her husband that she will give him the desired field. There was none like Ahab who did sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the Lord, whom Jezebel, his wife, stirred up (verse 25). They coveted fields and took them by violence; they defrauded a man and his heritage (Mic. ii, 8).

8. "So she wrote letters in Ahab's name and sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters unto the elders and to the nobles that were in his city dwelling with Naboth." Which was worse, these or the death dealing letter of David the king in II Sam. x, 14, 15? God is the judge. How much better the life giving letters of Esther and Mordecai in Esther vii, 7, 8! The Son of Man came to save, not to destroy, men's lives. The devil is the devourer and the destroyer.

9, 10. "And she wrote in the letters, saying, Proclaim a fast and set Naboth on high among the people, and set two men, sons of Belial, before him to bear witness against him, saying, Thou didst blaspheme God and the king, and then carry him out and stone him that he may die." This is the devil's favorite pastime. He began it on Abel and has been at it ever since. He worked it vigorously with the little children in Israel about the time that Moses was born and with the children in Bethlehem when Christ was born. Through an unscrupulous woman he had John the Baptist beheaded and tried to kill Joseph in Egypt. When the time came, he was allowed to kill our Lord Himself. But in reference to this worst the devil can do to us we are told not to fear it. "Fear not them which kill the body" and "Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer" (Math. x, 28; Rev. ii, 10).

11, 12. "And the men of his city, even the elders and the nobles who were his inhabitants in his city, did as Jezebel had sent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent unto them." Perhaps they were indebted to her or to the king for the possessions they occupied. However that may or may not have been, they evidently feared to disobey her orders. Those who fear not to do right at any cost, like Joseph and Daniel, did not abound in the high places in Naboth's town, nor do they abound in high places anywhere as a rule.

13. "And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him, and the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth did blaspheme God and the king. Then they carried him forth out of the city and stoned him with such stones as Naboth who dared to stand against the will of the king; no justice for Stephen or Paul; none for the Lord Jesus Himself when He stood in our place to deliver us from the hand of the enemy. But there is an abundant welcome for all such in heaven, and the time will come when their righteousness shall shine forth as the sun.

14. "Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, Naboth is stoned and is dead." It would seem from II Kings ix, 26, that his sons were stoned also. It is not according to Gen. ix, 10, that dead men tell no tales, for the voice of every wrong thing on the earth is still crying to God, and He will see to it (Hab. ii, 11; James v, 4). Although God seems to keep silence and let men do as they please, yet He sees and knows everything, and it is written "Our God shall come and shall not keep silence, a fire shall devour before Him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about Him" (Ps. i, 8). As to the dead who die in the Lord, it is always blessed for them (Rev. xiv, 13), for they rest from their labors, and their works follow.

15. "Jezebel said to Ahab, Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money, for Naboth is not alive, but dead." The God of Naboth still lived, but Ahab saw to it that he was dead. Her heart of Him she took no account. What can the Almighty do to me? (Job xli, 17). The devil offers many present possessions and enjoyments, pleasures of sin for a season, but the season is so short and the eternal consequences so fearful that were it not for the awful blindness he puts upon people there would not be so many to accept his costly pleasures. Contrast II Cor. iv, 6, with Heb. xi, 25, 26.

16. "And it came to pass when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that Ahab rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite to take possession of it." But now the Lord speaks. His servant is again commissioned to meet Ahab. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap, and Ahab is told that where dogs licked Naboth's blood they shall also lick his, and shall actually eat up Jezebel, and it came to pass just as the Lord said it would (chapter xxii, 38; II Kings ix, 25, 26).

WILD STRAWBERRIES.

Fanny Davenport Once Ate Some That Cost Her Ten Dollars a Plate.

"Once, when Fanny Davenport was playing in Denver," said a local manager, "she told every one she saw that she wished she had a dish of strawberries. Now, strawberries were practically unobtainable in Denver just then, as Miss Davenport believed, but somehow her desire for the little red fruit became known, and the next day she had a call from an unexpected visitor.

"Miss Davenport was about beginning breakfast when this visitor rapped timidly at the door and was bidden to come in.

FANNY DAVENPORT.

It was a little girl, sunburned, ragged and awkward, but in her hand she held a basket of wild strawberries.

"I heard you wanted some," she said, "and I knowed where some grewed, and I went and picked 'em, and I've brung 'em to you."

"Miss Davenport's eyes sparkled as she looked at the tempting fruit, and she offered the child a dollar and the warmest thanks.

"But—but," faltered the girl, "I—didn't want money for 'em. I wanted to see the show."

"Fanny offered the girl a ticket.

"But, mum—but—but—ma an pa an the children would like to see it too," faltered the girl.

"How many are there of you?" queried the actress.

"Only 'leven of us, mum," replied the girl.

"Miss Davenport sighed, for she had just been told by her manager, Mr. Stern, that the house was already sold out, and there was no way of accommodating the 'leven of us' but by giving up the stage box.

The girl got an order for the box, and the star ate the most expensive plate of strawberries that she has ever partaken of either before or since."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

As to Horseback Riding.

The Kentuckian was talking freely about horses. Although it was a safe stable, he was speaking his mind. He had made the proper speeches about the gait of the beautiful creatures the dandy trainer trotted up and down; he had not lost his look of grave acquiescence when he heard things about the horse who trots. But a chance word touched his true thought, and he spoke the faith of Kentuckians and westerners, Texans and Californians, in something this wise: "That's right. It ain't really riding to jolt up and down and look stylish on a trotting horse. You can't say much about it in Boston, or anywhere in cities where people don't care about the easy steps. They don't know what you're talking about. It's a queer notion and one my folks in Kentucky can't get used to—that a trotting horse can be a saddle horse. Women want to be stylish, though, everywhere, and they would learn how to rise up like the Boston women. But they didn't keep it up. A steal away and the gallop's the thing for country American riding."—Boston Transcript.

Wisdom Beyond His Years.

His mother found him in the jam and reprimanded him. A little later she caught him teasing his baby sister and reprimanded him again.

"I don't see what's got into you, Willie," she said. "You're usually the good little boy, but today you're up to all kinds of mischief."

"I'm tired of being good," he returned with juvenile frankness.

"Tired of being good?" she exclaimed. "What do you mean by that?"

"Well, brother Bob is naughty most of the time, and you're always giving him things to get him to be good, and I guess I'll be naughty for awhile and see if I don't get something too."

Sometimes a youngster seems to have wisdom beyond his years.—Chicago Post.

Day School at Chickamauga.

An innovation in camp life at Chickamauga was introduced several days ago by Private Sam Tudor, one of the "rookies" of Company L, Second Kentucky, in the establishment of a school for elementary instruction in reading, writing and arithmetic. Tudor has about 80 pupils and more applications than he can attend to.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No Call for Music.

Possibly there may be a concert of European powers after the Spanish-American war is over, but hardly before. There is no call for music as yet.—New York Mail and Express.

Cuban Hammock Song.

See us softly swaying
"Neath the shady trees,
Leaves above us playing
In the gentle breeze.
Cuba, Cuba libre!
That's the song we sing
While the shadows come and go
And the breezes softly blow.
Cuba, Cuba libre!
Singing as we swing.

Bless us, this is pleasant,
Neither thought nor care!
Let's enjoy the present
In the drowsy air.
Yanks on top of the scrapping
(Heave 'em bang away!)
We prefer our napping
Through the drowsy day.
Cuba, Cuba libre!
That's the song we sing.
Eating while we swing in line,
Yanks eat and we sing
Cuba, Cuba libre!
Singing as we swing.

Shot a Child Dead.

Rhineland, Wis., July 27.—Roy Goodell, aged 10, son of W. F. Goodell, shot and instantly killed Freddie, the 6-year-old son of Oswald W. Roedrich. The little fellow was pulling up corn in the Goodell yard and was told to stop it or he would be shot. Not obeying the order young Goodell stepped into the house, got a 44-caliber rifle and at two rods distance deliberately fired, the bullet entering the mouth and coming out of the back of the head. The dead boy's mother sat with his head in her lap, crazed with grief, when the neighbors arrived.
